

*The Impact of Open Access
Policies on Libraries: The
New Era in Publishing
Industry*

Prof Daphne Kyriaki-Manessi
Artemis Chaleplioglou
Eugenia Vassilakaki

Definitions

- ★ Open access: free availability
- ★ Institutional repositories: managing information produced within
- ★ Content management: acquire, assimilate, develop and disseminate information to all users via internet

Open Access Movement

★ The role of libraries and librarians

★ The development of institutional repositories

★ The Publishers

The future of Open Access Movement

★ Failure?

★ Success?

★ Something in between?

Institutional Repositories and Scientific Information

- ★ Institutional
- ★ Scholarly
- ★ Cumulative and perpetual
- ★ Interoperable

Institutional Repositories

Production of content will increase

Librarians and IT staff are needed

IT increasingly important

Content management policies necessary

Promotion is of essence

Cost free usage

Preservation

Libraries as IR managers

- ★ Give easy, rapid, long-term access to information
- ★ Give access to evaluated, organized and filtered information
- ★ Increase readership and usage of scientific information
- ★ Produce new informational products
- ★ Measure the institutional output and scientific research production
- ★ Provide a tool for research funding
- ★ Operate parallel to traditional publishing industry

Information Professionals

- ★ Policies
- ★ Cooperation
- ★ Portals
- ★ Metadata
- ★ Copyright
- ★ Content Quality and
- ★ Quality control
- ★ Preservation
- ★ Promotion
- ★ User training

Information Organizations

Repositories have emerged as a result of acquiring through open access procedures scientific information. The need to handle, preserve and manage scientific information in an information oriented environment and offer it as a service to its users had made libraries the designated points for the creation of such projects...